President Trump's inauguration JANUARY 2025

HAND THAT SPURNS THE BIBLE: WHAT THAT MEANS?

The inauguration of a newly elected American president is a major event in American politics.

For generations, the inauguration ceremony of the president-elect has always consisted of the latter taking the oath of office before a Supreme Court Justice, considered the judicial guarantor of the Constitution and therefore of American justice.

Moreover, the tradition of the constitutional oath-taking ceremony has always shown the president-elect placing his left hand on the Bible, which a family member, most often his wife, holds firmly with both hands out of respect, while the right hand is raised as a sign of acceptance and a guarantee of respect for the Constitution.

We invite our readers to take a close look at this photo from the day of President Trump's second term constitutional oath-taking ceremony, which took place on January 20, 2025. The photo and videos published of the day clearly show that the president-elect did not place his left hand on the Bible, which his wife, Melania, was holding as she did in 2016.

“While Article II Section I of the Constitution requires presidents to take the oath of office, there is no requirement for them to use a religious text, or any text at all, while doing so – but almost all President in history have taken the oath of office, on a Bible....”

In January 2025, no one, not a member of his family, not his aides, and least of all the Chief Justice who coordinated the constitutional oath-taking, had reminded the new president to kindly place his hand on the Bible held (two in this case) by his wife, Melania. Everyone pretended not to see.

Was this pure oversight, or was it a fear of imposing a breach on the most indecent man in America politics? It is curious for a man that Republicans, Conservative Evangelicals alike, the so-called Christian Republicans and the MAGA followers at large consider an example of a model citizen, a strong leader with integrity when the man has proven to be incapable, for years, of formulating a sentence without inserting a lie in it; the first American president who lies like he breathes the air of the Creator. He is reputed to be immoral on all levels, divorced more than once, 32 times convicted felon, racist, bigot, divisive, a Citizen who don't pay his federal taxes, a man whose human feeling toward his/her fellow human are simple non-existent, an egocentric and misogynic, psychopath, impulsive, narcissist.

The reversed Bible

Trump has never publicly displayed the Bible. The first time he did so was on June 1, 2020, in front of St. John's Episcopal Church, after he ordered the Secret Service to crush the protesters for the death of George Floyd. Apparently, God wasn't on his side. Believing he was hiding behind the Word of God for his actions, he was exposed and confounded, instead, by that same Word of God, God Himself, by letting him holding the Bible backward and upside down... exactly as "The Word" had intended him to do. A sign of the times!

Not placing one's hand on the Bible is admitting that he will not comply with the Constitution, as President Donald Trump has demonstrated in so on many occasions. Instead of working hand by hand with the Congress or the Senate, the newly elected President has, in his first 100 days, ruled the country, 95%, by Executives orders. The proof of that is the fact that he is refusing the Supreme Court of Justice order, which clearly state to bring back a Salvadorian Citizen deported by error.

By refusing to submit, in many cases, to the US Constitution, given his executive orders, there is reason to believe that the President is having difficulty applying democracy as it is defined in this country. His penchant for publicly aligning himself with the leaders of countries whose fundamental freedoms are being challenged (North Korea, China, Russia), Trump demonstrates that democracy, as it is defined, remains a hindrance to his personal ambitions for how he would like to lead this country.

By sabotaging the constitutional oath and thus deviating from the Constitution and its ideals that make this country a nation apart, President Trump simply wants to define another America; an America whose land will no longer be a nation of second chances for the peoples of the world, an America that thrives in isolation; an America whose immigrants are no longer welcome, forgetting that he himself, and recently, his wife Melania, are the product of immigrants.

So far, he's winning, largely due to the duplicity and hypocrisy of Congress and the Senate, where the Republican Party holds the majority and the so called Evangelicals for that matter. However, considering the opinion polls regarding the country's governance over the first 100 days and the subsequent mid-term elections that could give the Democrats an advantage, there is reason to believe the president will not maintain his "Rod of Destruction" for long. Already, Elon Musk, the unelected official and the head of the Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE), who caused so much havoc, has just thrown in the towel, but not before destroying so many lives.
